

The Path to Successful Research Publication: An Interactive Webinar for Emerging Scholars

Professor Dr tavis d. jules
Cultural and Educational Policy & International Higher Education
Loyola University Chicago

Friday, 16 May 2025, 8:00–9:30 AM
(Central Standard Time)

Register Here

Led by a globally renowned comparative and international education scholar, this free and highly interactive 90 minute workshop seeks to support graduate students and junior/emerging scholars in navigating the difficult research publication process by introducing them to practical strategies for successful publication in high-quality peer-reviewed journals.

Participants will learn how to craft compelling abstracts and prepare comprehensive writing plans. We will also cover common challenges such as authorship collaborations, meeting publication timelines, handling negative reviewer feedback, and managing delays in the publication process.

The workshop combines presentations, discussions, case studies, and practical exercises to give participants hands-on experiences. Participants are encouraged to bring drafts of their research papers for individualized feedback. By the end of the workshop, participants will be better equipped to prepare and submit research manuscripts that meet the standards of academic journals and enhance their research impact within the global scholarly community.

Professor Dr tavis d. jules

Learn more about Dr tavis jules and his inspiring work here

The webinar is organized by the

WERA International Research Network

Exploring Global Curricular Representations and Teachers' Enactment of Ancient and Indigenous Cultures and Wisdom Traditions

Find out more about us here